

The Greatest Little Hobbit of Them All

The tiny gourd
Who knew everyone in his sleepy village
Couldn't look away from the mountains
Lining the horizon:

Bilbo.

The courteous young man
Who never strayed from tradition
Could not be happier with routine
And his small home:

Bilbo.

The lunatic
Who invited 12 destructive dwarves and a wizard
Inside for dinner
To not seem rude:

Bilbo.

The unexpected hero
Who brought down mountain trolls
And learned to see eye to eye
With the high elves:

Bilbo.

The Hobbit
Who traipsed across the world carrying nothing but
The weight of his sorrows and
A chest of gold:

Bilbo.

The old man
Who kept to himself
But could never deny a storytelling session
With his loving, small nephew:

Frodo.

The one
Who, much like another Hobbit we know,
Couldn't rip his eyes from
The mountains that lines the unchanged
horizon:

Frodo.

The child
Who would change the world,
The Hobbit that he instilled his faith into,
The one that would make all the difference:

Frodo!

The one he couldn't have done it without:

Bilbo.
